Philippine Institute for Development Studies
TERMS OF REFERENCE

Study Team Members for the Formulation of PIDS Research Agenda 2026-2030: Public Health, Social Science, and Human Development

1. Background and Rationale

The Philippine Institute for Development Studies (PIDS), established by virtue of Presidential Decree No. 1201 in 1977, serves as the government's primary socioeconomic policy think tank. It is a nonstock, nonprofit government corporation engaged in long-term policy-oriented research to assist the government in crafting development policies, plans, and programs that are based on sound research evidence.

In response to the demand for systematic and comprehensive studies that can guide and support policymaking and planning, PIDS is envisioned to help planners and policymakers in the executive and legislative branches of government. These studies are being disseminated through an institutionalized knowledge dissemination system that aims to reach the Institute's clientele, mainly the policymakers.

The research operations of PIDS are based on a research agenda that is examined and updated every five years. The formulation of the agenda is undertaken with the help of external experts and through a series of consultations with stakeholders. As the latest five-year research agenda of PIDS is set to expire this year, 2025, the process of formulating the agenda for the next five years, 2026-2030, has to commence.

In view of the above, the Institute will engage the services of a study team comprised of a mix of three experts in the fields of economics/public policy/political science or related fields. The study team shall be led by an expert in the field of economics. The study team members could be former policymakers as well as academics/researchers. The team will be composed of a Study Team Leader, two Study Team Members, a Documenter/Writer, and a Logistics/Research Assistant.

2. Objectives

The main objective of crafting a five-year research agenda is for PIDS to have an objective prioritization of prevailing issues surrounding the affairs of the country and the world. Having this agenda in place will allow PIDS to contribute to policymaking and planning in the Philippines relative to its competency and the future requirements of policymakers and the government.

3. Scope of Work, Deliverables, and Schedule of Payment Releases

The Institute intends to undertake a process similar to previous periods, which is participatory in nature. In general, the consultants shall scan the policy environment and propose research areas where PIDS should focus on in the next five years.

The consultant shall look at the latest Philippine Development Plan (PDP), the mapping of PIDS studies in the last five years, and its proposed list of studies for 2025-2026 as reference. With this goal in mind, the consultants shall initially confer with the Research Fellows of the Institute to get the Fellows' own assessment of their priority areas, and so that the consultants could also have an overview of the research capacity at PIDS.

The consultants shall also conduct consultations with various experts, including regional/international experts, and stakeholders to elucidate the policy issues. The resulting outputs shall go through a review process through presentations by the Study Team to the PIDS Management and Senior Staff. The final output will be presented and submitted by the consultants to the PIDS Board of Trustees for approval.

The Study Team Members will share sectoral expertise (lending perspective on public health and human development) and provide technical assistance to the Team Leader in the execution of the following tasks/activities<sup>1</sup>:

1. Review the past research agenda and programs of the Institute and identify gaps particularly the most recent five-year agenda.
2. Evaluate current situations/context in the country and in the international setting and provide assistance in identifying potential scenarios or issues that may emerge five to ten years from now, and their implications to the PIDS Research Agenda.
3. Determine research gaps on socioeconomic policy concerns in the country that should be addressed, not just by PIDS alone but by the broader research community as well.
4. Identify policy issues that will become important considerations in the future, anticipating the policy environment for the next five to ten years. A forward-looking stance in terms of identifying key areas for research will be required of the consultants. Rather than focusing on sectoral concerns, the consultants may wish to look at issues that cut across various sectors and consider them as possible thematic focus of the new research agenda.
5. Conduct consultations with PIDS Management and Research Fellows and the Institute's key stakeholders composed of the DEPDev, policymakers, government agencies, members of the academe, researchers, international experts, private sector, and civil society, among others.
6. Submit a written output (report) on the study. The report must:
  - Contain a stock-taking of policy research of the Philippines, and the past and current role of PIDS studies in that research
  - Highlight linkages with the Philippine Development Plan (PDP) and Ambisyon 2040, as well as make clear to what extent the research agenda should align with international development commitments of the Philippines (SDGs, ASEAN Communities, etc.)
  - Map priority research to Institute capacities, and thereby identify human and other resource gaps
  - Contain a clear statement of research priorities
  - Offer a forward-looking agenda to guide future studies

<sup>1</sup> If the consultant needs to undertake physical/face-to-face interviews and data collection and related activities, the consultant has to ensure compliance with existing and future policies, rules, and resolutions as may be issued by concerned government agencies pertaining to health and safety.

- More broadly, ensure alignment of the Research Agenda with the strategy, mission, and vision of PIDS.
7. Present the report to PIDS staff and key stakeholders.
  8. Present the final output to the PIDS Board of Trustees.
  9. Organize a team that will include a research assistant/junior researcher that will assist the Research Agenda Committee in data collection and organizing of consultation activities.

The Team Leader shall lead the conduct of activities for the project. Under the Team Leader's direction, the Study Team members shall provide reports and inputs to inform the preparation of the Research Agenda report and the following outputs, which the Team Leader shall complete based on the schedule below:
